EDITORIAL

This issue of Newsletter features significant documents which I earnestly wish to highlight. The first document, the IFLA Multicultural Library Manifesto, currently under the process for approval by UNESCO, we publish in full. The second document provides "recommendations for the promotion and development of indigenous libraries in Latin America" and is itself an outcome of the II International Meeting on Access to Information and Promotion of Library Services in Indigenous Communities in Latin America (ALP Project), which was held as part of the IV Latin-American Congress of Librarianship and Documentation in São Paulo, Brazil. The third document is the "Declaration of Principles," drafted during the 4th Latin - American Seminar for National Librarian Associations, held in Bogota, Colombia. Finally, I call your attention to the report on the "Regional seminar for disseminating and promoting the IFLA/UNESCO Manifestos on Public Libraries, on School Libraries and the Internet, and on the information Society in Action" submitted to ALP by Ms. Mercedes Falconi, from Ecuador, This report, plus the report submitted by Bárbara Jones and Alejandra Martinez de Prado on the workshop on Guidelines for the Internet Manifesto, held simultaneously in Quito, Ecuador, and the report by Danielle Mincio on the meetings held in Ecuador make thoroughly evident how IFLA meetings in countries having no members and having never hosted a Federation meeting may have a significant impact. The effect was remarkable indeed; don't miss them out!

On behalf of the librarians and information professionals in Latin America and the Caribbean, I wish to welcome Jennefer Nicholson who will take office as IFLA Secretary General from September 2008. We wish her best of luck and success for her future position.

To librarians Elsa M. Ramirez Leyva, from Mexico, and Bárbara Ford, from the United States, our warmest congratulations for the deserved homage and awards they were nominated for. To Mexican librarians Estela Morales Campos, José Adolfo Rodrigues Gallardo, Roberto Garduño Vera and Jaime Rios Ortega, our heartiest congratulations for their honorable new positions and our best wishes for success. I also wish to take the opportunity to thank the Ecuadorian, Colombian, Brazilian, Mexican and Panamanian institutions for the support given to the accomplishment of IFLA/ALP (SIDA) sponsored events this year, without which our projects could not have succeeded.

Finally, I want to make mention of the excellence shown by the professionals in the Latin America and Caribbean Section, who, besides being renowned professionals in their respective countries, hold positions of eminence. For their performance, enthusiasm, and interest for the development of the Librarianship career in the hemisphere and for the support they provide to the Regional Office, I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude and highest esteem for their competent work.

The next IFLA Congress will be held in Quebec in August. Hopefully we will meet many librarians from that region in the most important event sponsored by the Federation. See you there.

LETTERS OF THE PRESIDENT

No. 1 January 2008

Dear IFLA Members,

I hope you all have had a good start into 2008. I want to thank all colleagues who sent New Year Greetings to me via Email or letter; the most recent arrived right after the Chinese New Year last week and I appreciate them all. It was wonderful to receive your greetings from all over the world. It is such a good feeling to share our greetings among the members of our great IFLA community. And I must apologise that I am not able to answer personally to each of you, as two responsibilities are ruling my life: the IFLA Presidency and Director General of ZLB. Nevertheless I enjoyed a short holiday with my family in rainy Northern Germany in January. Let me start with some business news, on December 3 – 7, 2007, the IFLA Governing Board and committees met in The Hague. All members of the Governing Board were present. It was a very busy and fruitful work together with the new board.

I took part in the search committee to interview the invited candidates for the Secretary General and we presented the result to the Governing Board for decision. Jennefer Nicholson will become IFLA Secretary General from September 2008, when Peter Lor will end his extended term and leave IFLA HQ. She will support his work from June 2008 onwards. She told me she has received hundreds of congratulation messages already, since the announcement was published on IFLANET. Thank you all for your active acknowledgement.

Again during the first days of 2008, I went back to The Hague for the search committee on the long wanted Advocacy Position. As you all have read on our IFLANET we filled the position with Stuart Hamilton, who is now very busy to keep up with all the tasks, writing reports and proposals and preparing activities and meeting partners.

At the Governing Board meeting we discussed thoroughly the first draft of the new Statutes by Alex Byrne and Peter Lor on the basis of discussions from the former GB and Durban Council decisions and taking into account the relevant laws of the Netherlands. In a long discussion the new GB gave excellent input and set up a working group to finish the draft of the Statutes. This group, with Nancy Gwinn, Bob McKee, Barbara Schleihagen and Claudia Lux met on February 6 in Berlin and finished the draft with assistance from Kelly Moore. As IFLA has changed a lot during the last years, the changes are quite substantial; the draft text will be discussed with our lawyers before we send it out to the members in March.

I have also been travelling quite a lot!

On December 10 I went to Antwerp in Belgium to give a keynote speech at the GL9, the Grey Literature conference. Grey Literature was my topic 12 Years ago, when I was director of the Berlin Senate Library. This was my 3rd GL conference. There is a very active Grey Literature community and we had good talks with some high administrative people of Antwerp.

December 13: I followed a discussion in the German Bundestag, initiated by an Enquête-Commission on Culture. This was the result of a lot of work that a group of us from the German Library Association has put into lobbying for libraries during the last 3 years. Some good proposals and steps towards 'Libraries on the Agenda' are the results.

January 23: I gave a talk on an international meeting on libraries services for integration and cultural diversity in Copenhagen.

January 26 – 28: I went to Croatia to participate in BOBCATSSS, a conference organised by the students of library and information science in Europe. This time students from the Humboldt University in Berlin, and Students from Potsdam, Olegsch and Zadar took part in the Organising Committee. About 200 delegates followed a very lively and interesting program.

I visited the Public Library of Zadar and the director Ivan Pehar introduced to me all the activities of the library, which is very active and well connected to the people of Zadar. It gets a lot of support. I also visited the new Public Library of Sibenik, an architectural icon integrated in the old town wall with a beautiful new shape. This library employs an artist, who leads workshops for children and young adults. I had good talks with the representatives of the local library association and with Zdenka Sviben, the president of the Croatian Library Association.

With best wishes to all of you

No. 2 February 2008

Dear IFLA Members,

In February, I stayed in Berlin most of the time; nevertheless there were quite a few IFLA activities. On February 6, a small group of the IFLA GB met in the Central and Regional Library of Berlin to work on the new IFLA Statutes. Nancy Gwinn, Bob McKee, Barbara Schleihagen and I sat together and worked on a new version of the statutes to present to our lawyers. Our aim was to have a clear distinction between the IFLA Statutes and the Rules of Procedure. In March, Peter and I were busy in completing the statutes according to Dutch law before we could send the final version. I think the exercise worked out quite well and I hope you agree with the new statutes.

On February 21 – 22, the second presidential meeting took part in Berlin. The Presidential meeting is a conference sponsored by the Foreign Ministry of Germany during the years of my presidency. This meeting is held on the premises of the Federal Foreign Ministry – very close to one part of my library. This year the German Research Foundation, DFG, was a Co-Sponsor along with the German Library umbrella organisation BID – Bibliothek Information Deutschland and its committee Bibliothek – Information – International. Besides the main topic, Putting 'Libraries on the Agenda', the need to put the Digital Library on the Agenda was expressed by many speakers. Most of the papers are in English, even when the title is in German:

www.ifladeutschland.de/de/ifla_praesidentschaft/programm_2008.html

I attended the Medium-Term meeting and Seminar of the IFLA Library of the Blind Section "Taking advantage of co-operation Introducing DAISY and IFLA", held in Zagreb on February, 27 – 28. I was very impressed by the quality of the reports from the different East European Countries and the achievements made. Many of our blind colleagues took part in the meeting and gave speeches at this conference about the future developments through high technical standards for the blind. My talk was about 'Putting libraries for the blind and print disabled on the political agenda'. The visit to a very modern library for the blind in Zagreb was another highlight of the meeting. You will find here a short report on the meeting.

With best wishes to all of you

No. 3 March 2008

Dear IFLA Members,

March started with a meeting of the IFLA Working Group on Guidelines of Digital Libraries at the Central and Regional Library of Berlin. This working group consists of representatives of different IFLA sections and regions. The two-day meeting, sponsored by the World Digital Library of the Library of Congress, Washington, was very productive. I hope that the group will be able to supply the first draft of the Guidelines to IFLA members at the World Library and Information Congress (WLIC) in Québec in August 2008.

On March 6th I took part in a meeting of critical friends at the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation (BMG) in Seattle. I met again with Martha Choe, who has changed position from the Foundation's Global Libraries to become Chief Administrative Officer of the Foundation, after the BMG Foundation had monitored their activities and reviewed their work and their strategy. BMG has become a very important and valued partner of IFLA. Among a number of topics, we discussed the impact of access to the Internet through libraries. IFLA needs to learn more about this impact. I would appreciate if you could give us your library success stories: how do users of your library services access the knowledge in the web, how does this help them in their personal, educational or professional life? Please send stories to us or put them directly into our success-database which has been recently updated by Danielle Mincio, GB member from Switzerland.

From March, 12-15 2008 I participated in the seminar 'Libraries on the Agenda' organised by the 'Goethe Institute New Delhi' and co-sponsored by other cultural institutions. I was very impressed by the open discussion about the challenges Indian librarians face; their deep understanding of the need for advocacy and the development of a common plan; the success Indian professionals have had in consultation with the National Knowledge Commission and its president Sam Pitroda. Mr. Pitroda participated in the conference by video through a lecture and discussion. In addition to the personal efforts of our colleagues, a focussed, unified effort by librarians will achieve the best results. I congratulate the Indian colleagues on their successful seminar and support them in pursuing these activities. I visited a Special Art Library, the Central Public Library in Old Delhi and a University Library in Agra. I saw the differences and challenges of their daily library work. What unites us all is our opportunity to enable people to access information and knowledge.

On 31st March I participated in the International Conference on Libraries from Human Rights Perspective in Ramallah, Palestine. This conference was the result of FAIFE activity in the region a year before, when Frode Bakken and Stuart Hamilton analysed the library situation there. Both Frode and Stuart and the current President of the Norwegian Library Association, Anne Husted, were part of the delegation. In Jerusalem, we learned about the impressive activities of the Van Leer Institute to save collections and visited the University Library, now the newly established National Library of Israel. I observed the progress made in their new legal framework and in digitisation of the wonderful collections they have. The meeting ended at a wonderful lunch with old and new Israeli IFLA friends.

In the Occupied Palestinian Territories, we travelled to Nablus and Ramallah. In Nablus we visited the construction site of the new part of the University Library and the well equipped Central University Library. We met with the current President of the Palestinian Library Association, Hani Jaber, who learned with appreciation and pleasure that the Norwegian Library Association will support their IFLA membership. This gesture was also wonderful news to me. On Sunday we went to Ramallah, where the International Conference on Libraries from Human Rights Perspective took place the first day before they met in East Jerusalem. The conference was a real success! Thanks go to the organisers.

See: rchrs.ps/test/aboutC.html and rchrs.ps/test/aboutc_a.html.

Both the Palestinian Cultural Minister and the Mayor of Ramallah gave speeches at the conference opening and the press coverage was excellent, with some Radio and TV-stations on site. For many local librarians, this was their first opportunity to give a paper at a library conference. We hope that they will be able to participate actively in one of the next IFLA conferences.

With best wishes to all of you

No. 4 April 2008

Dear IFLA Members,
April is the month of rain, snow and sun on the same day. At least in Germany, this month is unpredictable. However, your IFLA president, was steady and predictable, as she made fewer journeys.

When I was still in Ramallah, Peter Lor went to a UNESCO meeting in Paris and managed to successfully put the IFLA Multicultural Library Manifesto into the next level of UNESCO'S acceptance process. The new Digital Library Manifesto was also presented and made known to the colleagues and decision groups at UNESCO.

On April 7th I went to The Hague to meet with SIDA representatives at IFLA Headquarters. SIDA is a great Sponsor for IFLA/ALP– Action for Development through Libraries Programme. Together with Peter Lor, Stuart Hamilton, Birgitta Sandell from IFLA/ALP and Gunnar Sahlin, IFLA treasurer, I talked with SIDA about their future activities. We discussed the evaluation report and learned about the programme changes at SIDA. IFLA wants to continue to work with SIDA, but its changes of focus will affect the way in which we can fulfil our partnership. For this reason, we need more support for IFLA/ALP throughout the world.

From April 19 to 25, I was in The Hague again. The 'GB-week', as we call the week when the Governing Board and all its Committees meet, was a wonderful exchange of ideas and activities. In one week, different committees met to develop new decisions for the Governing Board. We discussed in length all aspects of IFLA's advocacy policy. It was a good meeting with a broad discussion on advocacy, a key factor for library development and sustainability. New ideas to strengthen our World Library and Information Congress (WLIC) were developed by a sub-group and discussed with the GB. The Professional Committee came forward with its suggestions for the new rules of procedure. Everybody was happy to learn that the members supported the new statutes by sending in their approvals. On Monday, April 21 Ellen Tise, Jennefer Nicholson and I went to Amsterdam to meet with CLM colleagues. We had a very nice trip, not only because of the magnificent fields of tulips in a mosaic of bright colours we saw from the train, but also at the meeting.

I am not attaching photos, as I promised to make this newsletter easily accessible, but you will find many wonderful photos of tulip fields by using your search engine.

With best wishes to all of you

Note:

The Letter of the President "LOP" is distributed at least once a month providing an overview of some of the current activities of the IFLA President, President Elect, the Governing Board and the Headquarters. It contains LINKS for further consultation and will be sent to IFLA-L and all other mailing lists organised by IFLA. Concise (one page), with no illustrations or special layout, it should cause no reception problems.

New Secretary General of IFLA: Jennefer Nicholson

IFLA is pleased to announce the appointment of Jennefer Nicholson as its new Secretary General, from September 2008. She will join IFLA's Headquarters in The Hague on 1 June 2008 as Secretary General designate and work with the outgoing Secretary General, Prof Peter Lor, until she takes over on 6 September 2008.

Jennefer Nicholson

Jennefer Nicholson has graduate qualifications in library and information science and in public policy and has spent most of her working life in the information sector – in advertising, information brokerage, and the library and information services sector. She moved into association management in the early 1990s and was appointed Executive Director of the Australian Library and Information Association (ALIA) from 1999 to the end of 2005, following five years as the Deputy Executive Director. ALIA is the national professional body for the library and information sector, with 5000 personal members and 1000 institutional members. Jennefer was instrumental in the Association's renewal and restructure process, and in expanding ALIA's advocacy and participative role in the wider community.

For the past year Jennefer has been working with the Australian Government on media and content policy, and a major national broadband strategy.

Jennefer has over ten years' involvement in IFLA. She completed her second term as a member of the IFLA Management of Library Associations Section at WLIC Durban 2007, and has also served a term on the Education and Training Section. In addition, Jennefer has extensive experience as a director or member of a number of government and industry advisory bodies in the cultural, education and training, and association sectors.

Announcing the appointment, IFLA President Prof Claudia Lux said that the Governing Board is delighted to be able to appoint as IFLA's Chief Executive Officer a professional colleague of Jennefer's stature. Given the dynamic environment in which IFLA operates and the Federation's ambitious plans, Jennefer's extensive skills and experience will be a great asset to IFLA in the coming years.

Jennefer commented: "My appointment as Secretary General is a great honour for me, and an opportunity to give back to IFLA, having gained great professional and personal value as a member over the last ten years. I welcome the responsibility and in doing so acknowledge the contribution of all those members who have had the vision to lead IFLA to the position it now holds in the international arena.

I have a strong commitment to the values and professional concerns shared locally and globally by those in the library sector, and extensive experience in the sector and association management. I look forward to working with the President Claudia Lux, President-elect Ellen Tise, the Governing Board, members and staff to successfully articulate and achieve IFLA's strategic goals, and to strengthen the organization. I also look forward to meeting those of you I don't yet know."

The use of e-mail, she reported, has facilitated communication with users of the Office. She reported on the routine activity of the Regional Office Secretariat, such as updating files, the mailing list and addresses of SC members of IFLA-LAC, and management of correspondence. The Regional Office moved forward with the promotion of the Clearinghouse in the "Newsletter," which publishes news regarding publications received and available for consultation.

With regard to the Regional Office budget, she reported that it had been submitted to IFLA in October 2007. The Office's financial report was presented to the Coordinator of Professional Activities in February 2008. Funds for 2008 had not been received as of March 2008. The budget sent by the IFLA/HQ was allocated to promote greater participation of the Permanent Committee members in meetings in 2008, in a joined resolution with the IFLA/LAC Chair.

She also reported that in this period the Regional Office published the IFLA/LAC Newsletter (in English and Spanish) N° 51, December 2007, which was remitted to IFLA/HQ, ALP and others affiliated to IFLA/LAC, to the IFLA Clearinghouses and other important institutions in the region. MULTICULTURAL LIBRARIES SECTION

Multicultural Library Manifesto

(From the UNESCO site http://portal.unesco.org/ci/en/ev.php-URL_ID=26116&URL_DO=DO_TOPIC&URL_SECTION=201.html)

The Library Services to Multicultural Populations Section of the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions (IFLA) prepared a Multicultural Library Manifesto that proclaims cultural and linguistic diversity as a fundamental principle of freedom and equity of access to information and knowledge for all that should be the driver of library services.

IFLA intends to prepare international guidelines for implementing the principles contained in the Manifesto. The guidelines shall assist and support librarians developing policies and priorities for multicultural library services in accordance with the needs of their communities.

UNESCO has long been involved in the promotion of universal access to library resources. In this context, UNESCO and IFLA have jointly developed in the past three declarations of principles, which guide the creation and operations of libraries worldwide:

The Public Library Manifesto was first published by UNESCO in 1949. It was further revised by IFLA in 1972 and the last revised version was adopted by UNESCO's Intergovernmental Council for the General Information Programme in 1994. It proclaims UNESCO's belief in the public library as a living force for education, culture and information, and as an essential agent for the fostering of peace and spiritual welfare through the minds of men and women.

The School Library Manifesto, developed by IFLA and adopted by UNESCO General Conference in 1999, aims to define and advance the role of school libraries and resource centres in enabling students to acquire the learning tools and learning content that allow them to fully develop their capacities; to continue to learn throughout their lives; and to make informed decisions.

The Internet Manifesto, prepared by IFLA and endorsed by the IFAP Council in 2003, proclaims the fundamental rights of users both to access and to publish information on the Internet without restriction.

The Multicultural Library Manifesto completes this set of Manifestos.

The Bureau has examined the IFLA Multicultural Library Manifesto during its 13th session welcoming its spirit and objectives. It requested the Secretariat to consult with IFLA with a view to agree on the text of the Manifesto that could be promoted as a joint UNESCO/IFLA position and submit the agreed Manifesto to the fifth session of the Council for endorsement.

The Secretariat, involving Communication and Information Sector, and Culture Sector, and IFLA agreed to the text that is attached to the present document. It well reflects the principles laid out in the UNESCO Recommendation concerning the Promotion and Use of Multilingualism and Universal Access to Cyberspace (2003) as well as the UNESCO Universal Declaration on Cultural Diversity (2001).

The Intergovernmental Council for the Information for All Programme may wish to adopt the following decision:
Having examined document IFAP-2008/COUNCIL.V/7, particularly the IFLA Multicultural Library Manifesto;
Welcomes the spirit and the objectives of the IFLA Multicultural Library Manifesto;
Endorses the IFLA Multicultural Library Manifesto;
Recommends that the IFLA Multicultural Library Manifesto be submitted to the 35th session of General Conference for endorsement as a joint UNESCO/IFLA position.

The IFLA Multicultural Library Manifesto The Multicultural Library – a gateway to a cultural diverse society in dialogue

All people live in an increasingly heterogeneous society. There are more than 6,000 different languages in the world. The international migration rate is growing every year resulting in an increasing number of people with complex identities. Globalization, increased migration, faster communication, ease of transportation and other 21st century forces have increased cultural diversity in many nations where it might not have previously existed or has augmented the existing multicultural makeup.

“Cultural Diversity” or “Multiculturalism” refers to the harmonious co-existence and interaction of different cultures, where “culture should be regarded as the set of distinctive spiritual, material, intellectual and emotional features of society or a social group, and that it encompasses, in addition to art and literature; lifestyles, ways of living together, value systems, traditions and beliefs”. Cultural diversity or multiculturalism is the foundation of our collective strength in our local communities and in our global society.

Cultural and linguistic diversity is the common heritage of humankind and should be cherished and preserved for the benefit of all. It is a source for the exchange, innovation, creativity, and peaceful coexistence among peoples. “Respect for the diversity of cultures, tolerance, dialogue and cooperation, in a climate of mutual trust and understanding are among the best guarantees of international peace and security”. Therefore, libraries of all types should reflect, support and promote cultural and linguistic diversity at the international, national, and local levels, and thus work for cross-cultural dialogue and active citizenship.

As libraries serve diverse interests and communities, they function as learning, cultural, and information centres. In addressing cultural and linguistic diversity, library services are driven by their commitment to the principles of fundamental freedoms and equity of access to information and knowledge for all, in the respect of cultural identity and values.

Principles

Each individual in our global society has the right to a full range of library and information services. In addressing cultural and linguistic diversity, libraries should:

- serve all members of the community without discrimination based on cultural and linguistic heritage;
- provide information in appropriate languages and scripts;
- give access to a broad range of materials and services reflecting all communities and needs;
- employ staff to reflect the diversity of the community, who are trained to work with and serve diverse communities.

Library and information services in a culturally and linguistically diverse context include both the provision of services to all types of library users and the provision of library services specifically targeted to underserved cultural and linguistic groups. Special attention should be paid to groups which are often marginalized in culturally diverse societies:

minorities, asylum seekers and refugees, residents with a temporary residence permit, migrant workers, and indigenous communities.

Missions of multicultural library services

In a culturally diverse society focus should be on the following key missions, which relate to information, literacy, education and culture:

- promoting awareness of the positive value of cultural diversity and fostering cultural dialogue;
- encouraging linguistic diversity and respect for the mother tongue;
- facilitating the harmonious coexistence of several languages, including learning of several languages from an early age;
- safeguarding linguistic and cultural heritage and giving support to expression, creation and dissemination in all relevant languages;
- supporting the preservation of oral tradition and intangible cultural heritage;
- supporting inclusion and participation of persons and groups from all diverse cultural backgrounds;
- encouraging information literacy in the digital age, and the mastering of information and communication technologies;
- promoting linguistic diversity in cyberspace;
- encouraging universal access to cyberspace;
- supporting the exchange of knowledge and best practices with regard to cultural pluralism.

Management and operation

The multicultural library expects all types of libraries to adopt an integrated service approach. The core activities of library and information services for culturally and linguistically diverse communities are central, not “separate” or “additional”, and should always be designed to meet local or specific needs.

The library should have a policy and a strategic plan, defining its mission, objectives, priorities and services related to cultural diversity. The plan should be based on a comprehensive user needs analysis and adequate resources.

Library activities should not be developed in isolation. Cooperation with relevant user groups and professionals at local, national or international level should be encouraged.

Core actions

The multicultural library should:

- develop culturally diverse and multilingual collections and services, including digital and multimedia resources;

- allocate resources for the preservation of cultural expression and heritage, paying particular attention to oral, indigenous and intangible cultural heritage;
- include programmes supporting user education, information literacy skills, newcomer resources, cultural heritage and cross-cultural dialogue as integral parts of the services;
- provide access to library resources in appropriate languages through information organization and access systems;
- develop marketing and outreach materials in appropriate media and languages to attract different groups to the library.

Staff

The library staff is the active intermediary between users and resources. Professional education and continuing training focused on services to multicultural communities, cross-cultural communication and sensitivity, anti-discrimination, cultures and languages should be provided.

The staff of a multicultural library should reflect the cultural and linguistic characteristic of the community to ensure cultural awareness, reflect the community the library serves, and encourage communication.

Funding, legislation and networks

Governments and other relevant decision-making bodies are urged to establish and adequately fund libraries and library systems to offer free library and information services to culturally diverse communities.

Multicultural library services are in essence global. All libraries involved in activities in this field must participate in relevant local, national or international networks in policy development. Research is needed to obtain the data necessary to make informed service decisions and secure appropriate funding. Research findings and best practices should be widely disseminated in order to guide effective multicultural library services.

Implementing the Manifesto

The international community must recognize and support libraries and information services in their role of promoting and preserving cultural and linguistic diversity.

Decision makers at all levels and the library community around the world are hereby requested to disseminate this Manifesto and to carry out the principles and actions expressed herein. (UNESCO website)

Colombian Library Superhero

Last Thursday, April 24, the Colombian Library Association, ASCOLBI, awarded its Librarian of the Year Awards and Wilton Hurtado Cuero was one of the four librarians honored in the country.

Wilton story inspired me more than anything I saw or listened to during my stay in Bogotá. Shortly after receiving his degree as a librarian in 2004, he started to work as the public librarian of the Afro-Colombian community of Boca de Satinga in the Municipio Olaya Herrera in the Pacific Department of Choco. He is a man of action. When a flood from the Canal Naranjo destroyed his library, he asked for help to the government to continue providing books to the library users. As part of the National Reading and Library Plan, the city provided Wilton with a rucksack.

He started to bring books to his customers using the rucksack and the Maleta Viajera was born. Wilton would walk for hours along the Rio Santiago to bring books to three schools and to houses of customers in remote neighborhoods. Every week Wilton would bring new books, ask customers what they wanted to read and little by little he re-established the librarian-customer relationship they had before the library was destroyed.

While visiting the schools, Wilton started to noticed that students were falling asleep and shortly afterwards he found out that some children were not eating at all. The illegal fumigation used to kill cocaine plants killed crops cultivated by the children families decimating their economy. Immediately, Wilton talked to the teachers and together contacted the Family Department securing food stamps for the families.

Recently, the county rented a house that serves as a temporary library. Wilton receives, prepares and shelves the books. He also cleans the library because there is no one else to help with that. Wilton is raising chickens and rabbits in the backyard of the house. He is going to stay in Satinga until he establishes a new library.

Last Thursday, Wilton took a three hour boat trip from Satinga to Tumaco, followed by a 6 hour taxi ride to the Pasco airport where he took a 50-minutes flight to Bogotá. He was welcomed by Colombian colleagues and international visitors attending the awards ceremony at the Virgilio Barco Library Auditorium. I was one of them.

I will never forget a librarian like Wilton. He is really passionate about his work and the people he serves. Here's to you, Wilton!

International Genealogy and Local History

Nr 130 in the IFLA Publications Series.

This book contains the papers delivered at sessions organised by the Genealogy and Local History Section at the annual conferences of the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions (IFLA) between 2001 and 2005; many of these are updated versions of the original presentations.

A wide range of significant issues and trends in historical and family research is covered. The authors, all experts in their own fields, address those engaged in delivering genealogy and local history services in libraries, archives and museums across the world. Moreover they focus on the growing army of enthusiasts directly engaged in tracing their own ancestral and local history.

Several papers give useful hints on how various resources can be used to further personal research. These include the exciting opportunities offered by the digitisation of primary resources and by the impact of the powerful new technology, among other things now on offer through DNA profiling.

New Saur Publication on Government Information

Just off the press: Best Practices in Government Information: A Global Perspective. Edited on behalf of IFLA by Irina Lynden and Jane Wu.

A rare opportunity to discover international trends and developments in access to government information is presented to you in selected papers from Africa, the Americas, Asia, Europe, the Middle East, Oceania and Russia.

Originally presented at seminars and open sessions of the IFLA World Library and Information Congress over the past five years, the papers have been thoroughly reviewed and updated by their authors.

As this volume illustrates, providing access to government information in whatever form presents enormous challenges. Issues range from basic to sophisticated: public access, including censorship; legislation, facilities for the user, including training; and the possibilities for enhancement of on-line information, through maps, statistics, videos, and sound. Underlying all is access and use of government documents to increase political literacy. The editors highly recommend this book to practitioners of government document management, to reference and public service staff, to library educators and to the information literate in all walks of life.

IV Latin-American Congress of Librarianship and Documentation / III International Meeting on Access to Information and Promotion of Library Services in Indigenous Communities in Latin America

São Paulo, Brazil, March 25-28
(ALP Project 385)

In the period from 25 to 28 March, 2008, the IV Latin-American Congress of Librarianship and Documentation / III International Meeting on Access to Information and Promotion of Library Services in Indigenous Communities in Latin America was held in the city of São Paulo, sponsored by FEBAB - Brazilian Federation of Library Associations, Information, Scientists and Institutions, and by Latin America Memorial Foundation, and relying on the Institutional Support provided by IFLA / LAC, IFLA / ALP and IFLA Regional Office for Latin America and the Caribbean. The full program and the recommendations, including the participation of representatives from the whole Latin America, are available on the site www.febab.org.br. The Annals have already been published and the interested parties should get in contact through the febab@febab.org.br

This seminar provided a forum for discussing and disseminating library services related topics as well as for those actions that, besides promoting the access to information, will meet the cultural and educational needs and characteristic of the Latin-American indigenous peoples.

Recommendations for promoting and developing indigenous libraries in Latin America

From March 25-28, 2008, within the framework of the 3rd International Meeting on the Access to Information and the Promotion of Library Services for Latin-American Indigenous Communities, organized by the Brazilian Federation of Librarians Associations, Information Scientists and Institutions - FEBAB and by Latin America Memorial Foundation, with the institutional support from IFLA/ALP, IFLA/LAC, librarians, information and communication professionals, educators, heads of information units, together with authorities and leaders of institutions from: Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Mexico, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Venezuela, and from Spain, Canada and the United States, met at the Latin America Memorial Foundation, in São Paulo, Brazil, after analyzing and discussing on the current situation of library and information services in the countries of the region.

WHEREAS:

- Indigenous peoples or natives from Latin America, despite the formal recognition of their rights as stated in a number of national and international documents, are nevertheless underprivileged and excluded from any access to basic services, including access to library and information services, which are critical for their development;
- Library and information services, where appropriately designed and implemented according to the needs and the characteristic of the community, will become a key factor in strengthening the identity, leveraging the language, enriching and disseminating knowledge and cultural manifestations, and, in general, fostering development within an intercultural scenario;
- Current libraries and library system models in most countries were designed and implemented without taking into account the needs and the cultural and linguistic characteristic of the indigenous peoples;
- It is necessary and urgent to leverage programs and projects oriented to promoting and developing library services in indigenous villages, based on an appropriate awareness of the social, cultural, and linguistic situation of the indigenous communities, and as an integral part of national, regional, and local library systems.
- During the 3rd International Meeting on the Access to Information and the Promotion of Library Services for Latin-American Indigenous Communities, in São Paulo, valuable experiences on installation and development of library services in indigenous villages were shared, as well as experiences related to forms of attention, preparation of appropriate materials, staff training contents, studies related to indigenous communities, community participation - especially youth organizations - in the management of cultural and of information projects, which should have been systematized and disseminated at a regional level;

□ During the São Paulo meeting, revisiting the discussion started in the México (2000) and Lima (2003) meetings, significant contributions were made towards the construction of an indigenous intercultural and bilingual conceptual library framework, highlighting the role of such a library in strengthening the identity, the preservation, and the dissemination of cultural manifestations, and in recording the verbal culture;

□ During that Meeting, emphasis was given to the contribution from IFLA and IFLA's ALP program, with the adequate coordination between the Latin America Standing Committee and the IFLA/LAC Regional Office, and library organizations in the region, e.g., FEBAB, to the development of projects and concrete actions to promote library services in indigenous communities and villages in the region;

□ The participants of the 3rd International Meeting on the Access to Information and the Promotion of Library Services for Latin-American Indigenous Communities, convinced of the urgent need to tackle the precarious situation of the libraries in the indigenous villages, and aware of the role they are called to play in this process, agree to leverage, in a concerted way, a series of actions.

WORKSHOP ON THE IFLA INTERNET MANIFESTO

Final Report

São Paulo, SP, Brazil - March 29, 2008

Hosting Institution: Biblioteca Latino-americana “Victor Civita”, Memorial da América Latina

Considering the world scenario where digital inclusion and policies development are factors that need urgent actions, such as organization and access to information, undoubtedly these are two of the main challenges for countries and institutions that use the Internet. So, with the support of the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions (IFLA) and the Brazilian Federation of Library Associations, Information Scientists and Institutions (FEBAB), the “Workshop on the IFLA Internet Manifesto” was held in March 29, 2008, at the Biblioteca Latino-Americana “Victor Civita” Auditorium, Memorial da América Latina, in São Paulo, Brazil. Its aim was to provide a proper ambience for the analysis of the IFLA Internet Manifesto, a document which contains several principles that should be used as a guide to build information access policies in this environment as well as to socialize experiences from different countries.

Workshop Development

The first lecture was presented by Prof. Dr. Filiberto Felipe Martinez Arellano, President of the IFLA Latin American and the Caribbean Section (IFLA/LAC) Standing Committee, about “Internet Manifesto in the International Context”. He highlighted the connection of this document with Art. 19 from the “United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights”. Also, he emphasized the importance of IFLA Guidelines to the community in order to help librarians safeguarding freedom of access to information on the Internet. In addition, he pointed out the main principles that should be taken into consideration in this process: public access, libraries and other information centers as points of access between people and information, contents, e-governments and democracy, besides the need of adopting more friendly software. He mentioned the barriers that should be removed in order to enable free access to information for all citizens and also the matters concerning users’ training and policies establishment. These are actions recommended by IFLA and they aim to stimulate communities and national governments to support the use of information on the Internet in the libraries.

The second lecture was presented by Prof. Antonio Carlos Gonçalves de Oliveira, Programs Manager, from the Public Administration Secretary, State of São Paulo Government, representing the Secretary Dr. Sidney Beraldo. It was about "Programa ACESSA São Paulo" (São Paulo Access Program), for digital inclusion. He stated that this policy meets the major part of Internet Manifesto contents, and pointed out the aims of the Program, mainly concerning the guarantee of democratic and free access to information and communication technologies. Also, he commented on further aspects of the Program and its networks, as a result of partnerships with some mayors' offices or with the State of São Paulo Government itself. The lowest local Indexes of Human Development (IDH) were chosen for the definition of access points in the State of São Paulo, and one third of the access points were established in public libraries - some strategies are under way to enlarge this range. The Program provides appropriate technological infra-structure, including instructors to train users for the responsible use of this tool. A following-up system and evaluation procedures have been adopted in order to carry out continuous adjustments as needed. Some experiences have been included in a video presentation, entitled "Working Women".

The third lecture was about "Library and the Internet in Brazil: scenarios and trends", by Prof. Regina Célia Baptista Belluzzo. She presented some reflections about contemporary society, its main characteristics, the informal economy, and highlighted the libraries as agents in information area. There are some multicultural contexts in this environment and reality is fragmented into its political, economic and cultural conditions. Also, she reported on some situations related to Brazil and the Internet, pointing out the individual access, places where this access is carried out and the main reasons for not having access to Internet yet in some regions. In Brazil, the initiatives concerning Internet use were commented on, emphasizing the role of libraries as a great challenge in the national context. Especially, the need to meet the important points proposed by Ms. Claudia Lux, President of the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions - IFLA, concerning "Libraries in the Agenda" was highlighted. Other aspects were also mentioned, involving the Brazilian scenario, reassuring the importance of libraries. In this matter, only the infrastructure of networks and its technical handling will not be enough to accomplish citizenship, learning throughout lifetime, innovation and social development. As main tendencies in this area, some were in relief, such as the development of new methodological proposals, the assemblage of holdings on multiple cultural contents and the adoption of strategies, policies and support plans to the free circulation of information. The final recommendation was directed to the need of having a project of wide social and political rebuilding in which all society segments are involved and are able to decide about the main path to be followed. This can be considered in order to lead to a solution for the social validity of Internet Manifesto in Brazil.

Next, Ms. Barbara Jones, Secretary of the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions / Committee on Free Access to Information and Freedom of Expression (IFLA/FAIFE), presented a brief contribution about "The current role of Internet in Libraries", pointing out the role of librarians in this scenario. According to article 19 from the "United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights" and the Internet Manifesto, they should do whatever they can in order to promote the open and free information flow in their communities. She pointed out that Internet can accelerate the national development and also can help reducing the digital divide, depending how this is put into practice. Also, she mentioned factors involving barriers to the Internet access and presented some examples and experiences of libraries and librarians concerning them, especially those related to corruption, transparency, and users' knowledge about this matter, among others. She recommended that other seminars can be developed for debating on this matter and on the role of information professionals in this context.

Prof. Martha Castro, from Universidad Veracruzana de Mexico, was the next lecturer and reported about the access to information and its use in Latin America, pointing out the quality of social justice and sustainable development. She mentioned Art. 26 from the "United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights", and commented on the following items: development of human personality and enhancement of respect to the human rights; freedom of expression and association; freedom of thought, of conscience, of religion, of opinion, of expression, and of meeting. Another point emphasized was access to knowledge, that includes freedom of information, and information is fundamentally used for decision-making. She presented some detailed experiences carried out in different countries, involving persons with visual impairment as well as women in the digital inclusion process, contributing as a result to reduce gender discrimination and promoting access to information in rural areas. Prof. Castro highlighted the importance of public policies in the Government agendas.

As a final participation, Ms. Barbara Jones talked about "Implementing the Internet Manifesto in the Region", and reported on the importance of the Manifesto to build formal policies on the Internet use and to help providing better use of library services. She also pointed out the importance of library professionals to keep continuously aware of the programs under development by the library associations in their countries.

Final Considerations

We congratulate the participants, lecturers and organizers of this Workshop who have enabled an ambience of reflection and discussion on the subjects of Internet, Libraries, and Librarians as well as on the access to information and its use in a smart way for the building of knowledge in the contemporary society. We expect that the 105 participants of this historical moment can multiply these actions in their consciences and communities.

I Information for All Forum (Ifap)

The Brazilian Institute for Information in Science and Technology (Ibict), a research unit of the Ministry of Science and Technology, together with Unesco (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization) in Brazil hosted this Tuesday (5/13) the I Information for All Forum. The event was held at Itamaraty and gathered public and private organizations from all over the country that are engaged in promoting the information society. The objective was to revitalize the Information for All Program (Ifap) National Committee, as set up by UNESCO in 2001.

At the time, five work groups were set up according to the themes, namely, digital preservation, education and culture, multilanguage, free access to knowledge, and digital/social inclusion. The intention was to unchain policies and actions towards the inclusion of society in the new wave of information and knowledge provided by the new communication technologies.

According to UNESCO representative in Brazil, Vincent Defourny, who was a member of the event opening panel, the Ifap program constitutes an important reference of the efforts made towards the progress of the concept of knowledge societies and towards the attainment of the millennium development objectives, by providing a forum for reflection and for the international debate on such themes. "For UNESCO, the Information for All program and all applications and the countless factors would reflect the multiplicity of actors that work in the information society area," he said. According to Defourny, Ifap was created to replace both the General Information Program (PGI) and the Intergovernmental IT Program (IIP), which were previous UNESCO initiatives designed to face the challenges placed by the information society. As the UNESCO representative said, Ifap is considered to be kin to the Communication Development Intergovernmental Program (IPDC), which was designed to foster a free and pluralist media, abiding by ethical professional standards both in developing countries and transition countries.

"Unesco enthusiastically welcomes the set-up of Ifap's National Committee in Brazil, represented by Ibict, the focal point of the program in Brazil and a UNESCO key partner. I thank Ibict director, Professor Emir Suaiden, and his team for creating the conditions to install the program in Brazil. We wish this constructive cooperation to be alive in the day-to-day activities, so that we may harmonize positions and policies in order to reach our common goals. Ifap proposals for Brazil provide a fertile field for cooperation between the Brazilian institutions and our organization. Doubtlessly, this is key event for UNESCO and for those institutions engaged in fostering the access to information and to knowledge in Brazil", he emphasized.

2nd Seminar on Information on the Internet and the II Iberian-American Congress of Knowledge Management and Competitive Intelligence Brasília, July 27 - August 1 2008

The Science and Technology Ministry linked Brazilian Institute for Information in Science and Technology (IBICT), will sponsor in Brasília, from July 27 to August 1, 2008, the 2nd Seminar on Information on the Internet and the II Iberian-American Congress of Knowledge Management and Competitive Intelligence. These events will count on the participation of distinguished Brazilian and foreign experts. The Manager of the Regional Office was invited, as a member of the Panel that will address the theme "Preserving the digital border", which is due to be held on 7/28/08, from 2:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m, to talk about the IFLA/UNESCO Manifesto and Guidelines for the Internet.

Regional international professional colloquy on digital libraries

The Maison de France's Digital Media Library in Rio de Janeiro and the Goethe Institute of Brazil (Rio) jointly sponsored a regional international professional colloquy on the theme of "digital libraries," which was held on May 26-27, 2008 in the Maison de France Theater in Rio de Janeiro. The Librarianship Regional Council-RJ, the IFLA Regional Office for Latin America and the Caribbean and the National Library supported the seminar.

The colloquy focused more specifically on the challenges placed by the large-size international projects dealing with digitization and the development of remote services in the libraries, especially nationally. In line with the regional dimension, the colloquy focused mainly on the future of cultural and linguistic communities within the digital context, regarding especially preservation of the cultural diversity. France and Germany, as members of the European Union, as well as Brazil, quite naturally, emphatically supported the international convention project, implemented in the scope of UNESCO, regarding cultural diversity.

In this regard, after the previous colloquies, which allowed giving rise to a professional discussion about the future of the libraries in the digital context, the event aimed to leverage a discussion aimed to the book and intellectual production chain. In fact, the mass digitization projects, including large-size digital libraries in a planetary scale, either commercial or institutional, has put under question the current economic and juridical models. The French and German professional institutions and organizations (including national libraries, university libraries, publishing houses, booksellers, and authors) are replicating the initiatives in an attempt to give a response to such questions: work groups, seminars, meetings... Therefore, the target public included not only the professionals engaged in library activities, but also publishers, booksellers, intellectuals, universities, to whom such challenges are getting more and more critical. Debaters, both French and German, share the same thinking.

- Arnaud Beaufort, director of services and networks in the National Library of France, who presented the latest version of the Gallica Library
- Luciano Scotti, BnF director of international relationships, who made presentation about the cooperation projects currently being implemented in Europe and in the francophone world ;
- François Gèze, PDG of La Découverte editions, who talked about the challenges placed by digitization in the publishing world
- Armin Talke, legal adviser to Staatsbibliothek zu Berlin, addressed the issues related to copyright in the digital context
- Thomas Jäger, a researcher from Deutsche Nationalbibliothek, talked about the relationships with the book economy
- Heike Neuroth, director of research and development of Niedersächsische Staats und Universitätsbibliothek Göttingen, Göttingen State and University library and consultant to Max Planck Digital Library's « eHumanities » section, Berlin.

Because of the regional nature of this event, providing a forum for players from the South Cone (Argentina, Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay) to raise issues and debate, the colloquy received a significant support from the Regional Delegation for Cooperation in the South Cone's Area - Brazil, seated in Santiago, Chile. Guest participants included National Library directors from Argentina, Chile, and Paraguay, responding to an invitation from Maison de France, besides a dozen professional from the region

Rio's Libraries under modernization

The Government of the State of Rio de Janeiro has included the modernization of the state libraries among state's priorities. Besides the consultancy provided by international and academic entities, a team from the State Culture Secretariat visited libraries in Colombia and in Chile with the purpose of seeing the positive experiences in Latin America on site. In addition, a specialist from the Libraries Superintendence attended a time of training at Centre George Pompidou's BPI - Bibliothèque Publique d'Information, in Paris, and visited French libraries. The Public Libraries Modernization Plan designed by the Rio de Janeiro State includes both upgrading and adapting the Institutions located in Rio de Janeiro to the new standards, as well as implementing improvements to physical facilities, seeking to adapt and expand both the space and the new activities.

The Rio de Janeiro State Public Library, located in the heart of Rio de Janeiro capital city, will be the main beneficiary of the new Modernization Plan. 135-years-old BPERJ, had part of its building and valuable collection destroyed by a fire in 1984. During Leonel Brizola government, Darcy Ribeiro conceived the design for the new library, based on the BPI. The current 10,000 square meter facilities were officially opened in 1987.

Public libraries worldwide are going through significant changes in an attempt to respond to a new concept, in which books, spaces and furniture are only meaningful if they contribute to enrich the life of the user. This is what the new BPERJ intends to offer to its users: reading with different supports, with electronic documental support; pleasant, clear and well-ventilated rooms, simple and comfortable furniture, adequate for study, leisure and pleasure, and appropriate spaces for cultural activities and services, which makes the library to be an important and attractive space for the people, which are ultimately the most key focus.

Region. A special reference was made to Caracas Meeting, which was organized by the Autonomous National Library Institute (IABN), IFLA, and CERLALC, whose outcome was the "Caracas Declaration" relatively to public libraries and the subregional programs to train public and school library instructors, carried out jointly with Unesco and CERLALC.

ECUADOR

Regional seminar for disseminating and promoting the IFLA/UNESCO Manifestos on Public Libraries, on School Libraries and the Internet and on the information Society in Action

The purposes of this IFLA/LAC & ALP supported Seminar included, inter alia: To disseminate among public and school libraries in the Region the postulates, principles, missions, and recommendations included in the IFLA-UNESCO Manifestos for Public, School Libraries and the Internet, as well as on the Information Society in Action.

Report submitted to IFLA/ALP

A. ACADEMIC REPORT

I. An evaluation of the present situation: who we are and what we do

The Quito's Regional Seminar with the purpose of making people aware of and promoting the IFLA/UNESCO Manifestos on public and school libraries, the Internet, the Information Society in Action and the Multicultural library, gave us an opportunity:

Firstly, to define who we are and what we do as members of what could be called an anonymous profession linked to literacy, knowledge, information and thought. In this regard, the seminar constituted a species of census of library professionals, since as soon as news of the International Library Seminar in Quito became known, not only members of associated professional groups who were already more or less acquainted with one another, basically because of their mutual differences, were eager to participate, but 370 others in towns and cities throughout the country also asked to be included in the seminar in order to be able to express their various opinions and points of view. In this regard, the seminar was quite a revelation.

The various members of the profession met in a creative way, not to air their differences but rather to seek positive ways of reinforcing the public space called << library >>, the manager of such space, called << librarian >>, and the key stakeholder in the process, namely << the reader >>. This positive relationship between the members of the profession is to be regarded as a key starting point. It was not the end. It was rather a beginning.

The cultural centers in the country, which have been suffering from increasing political rivalry, rather than cultural, were recently given the opportunity to participate in the IFLA project, under the patronage of the cultural centre La Posada del Pensamiento Borges. This convergence of several bodies (Casa de La Cultura, the Ministry of Culture, the National Library System, and the Metropolitan Cultural Centre) allows us to say that a "cultural governability" may exist around the book, which is the gateway to social and political governability. Libraries are in fact democracy.

The librarians' voices were indeed heard, not as faceless members of an "invisible" profession, but as committed individuals with professional concerns to express. The creation of a National Library was proposed to serve the following purposes: firstly, as a Library. i.e., properly stocked in all senses: modern and traditional. But being, at the same time, National, reflecting the background of the country and its projection in all areas.

The creation of a Network of Libraries, which can only come true if it becomes part of a wider, Regional Network that serves as a model and a sponsor. This became evident in the workshops, where each librarian was seeking the opportunity to learn from the successful experiences of their colleagues in other countries, relying on a << capital seed of knowledge >>. This is always positive.

The 17 foreign speakers provided the main encouragement to break down the toughest barriers which had previously existed; librarians would never dialogue with each other. The talks delivered amply met the expectations of the Ecuadorian participants, who was always active and highly receptive to speakers' words.

The sponsorship of IFLA/ALP and the presence of IFLA/LAC authorities, which permitted La Posada del Pensamiento Borges to democratize the seminar, turned it into a meeting-place for cultural exchange which was given wide coverage in all the media: television, press, radio. Media do not generally display much interest in such events.

The Seminar's website, which includes the talks given by visiting and Ecuadorian speakers, has become a permanent source for consultation. In this regard, the Seminar has not finished: it keeps on with its own dynamics.

All of this helped to achieve the seminar's main objective, which was to disseminate the IFLA/UNESCO Manifestos on Public and School Libraries, the Internet and the Information Society in Action.

II. An evolution from the past: where we come from and what foundations we have

The Quito seminar gave Ecuadorian librarians the opportunity to identify with one of the greatest figures in our country's history, Dr Eugenio Espejo, doctor of medicine, librarian, journalist and founding father of Ecuador's independence. The very name of Espejo gave national status and visibility to this international event. Participants in the seminar agreed that Ecuador's national Hero is not a military figure, but rather a writer and a librarian.

Espejo's historical role was stressed by the national authorities during the seminar, but especially by the Civic Celebrations Office (Oficina de Conmemoraciones Cívicas de la Presidencia de la República), which opened the seminar by inaugurated the Bicentennial celebrations of Latin America's first Declaration of Independence on August 10, 1809.

The library's links with Ecuador's history and struggle for independence added a note of prestige to the seminar, together with its venue, the Library, at a symbolic setting, which we are making an effort to maintain, seeing that it has traditionally been seen as a dull, sleepy place like a museum. Furthermore, for schoolchildren, the Library is compared with a punishment place.

The name of Eugenio Espejo, a mestizo Indian, allowed us to symbolically discuss the issue of intercultural libraries in an environment in which the symbol was accepted by everybody.

In short: the experience of reclaiming our national history through the dissemination of knowledge and not through military pronouncements (only) was a fundamental aspect of the Seminar.

III. Projection towards the future

IFLA has taken a formal stand. Ecuador's librarians are now aware of IFLA's existence, aims, and the possibilities provided. IFLA is no longer a meaningless acronym.

On the one hand, IFLA is currently an academic reference and a chance for Ecuador's libraries to push on and find the necessary consultancy for their disquietudes and projects. There is interest in participating.

On the other hand, IFLA is aware of the situation of libraries and librarians in a multicultural country that recognize knowledge and information in all levels as the keystone of the humanist and solidary and democratic freedom proposed by our great leader, Eugenio Espejo.

IFLA/UNESCO Manifestos on Public and School Libraries, the Internet and the Information Society in Action will be the theoretical and practical framework, which means that the manifestos will enable to trace the route and rely on the compass so as to allow the library system to improve the quality of the cultural and social services they provide to the users.

In conclusion, and in agreement with our talks with Elisabeth de Carvalho and other distinguished guest speakers, the Quito seminar has enabled us to chart the course of our libraries' activities and services in Half of the World. To understand how a Network of modern and multicultural libraries can be designed and set up. To expand, over all available channels, the dissemination of knowledge and to ratify the critical meaning of a needed national identity.

With regard to the objectives and the results outlined in the Project, Regional Seminar for disseminating and promoting the Manifestos on public and school libraries, the INTERNET, and Multicultural Libraries, we have the following to report:

1. The starting point

No IFLA/ALP presence in Ecuador. The existence of the institution was not known. Neither were its purposes or its management ability.

The Seminar provided an opportunity to set down the name of IFLA: an objective that was fully accomplished. IFLA is now a reference point between librarians and experts.

Librarians and experts, after a period during which they had maintained differences of opinion, are now integrating to IFLA and IFLA's academic events.

The Seminar has generated an academic mobilization between librarians from all over the country, and not only between those from Quito. They are making an effort to set up networks, to get qualified and updated.

Posada del Pensamiento Borges, which had undertaken the responsibility of organizing the event in their own facilities, receives now several requests for consultation and weekly visits for consultancy.

The creation of the National Library - building on the existing situation - which was one of the topics addressed during the Seminar, has become a cultural policy for the State. IFLA experts have been requested to provide professional consultancy through Posada del Pensamiento Borges. This topic is being discussed at the Office of the President level.

The event had such an impact that several of the speakers were requested for interviews by the television and the written press.

A record audience attended the Seminar: three hundred and seventy librarians from all over the country.

The librarians had an active participation.

The libraries have become a civic reference through the name of Eugenio Espejo, a thinker and doctor of medicine, librarian, journalist and founding father of Ecuador's independence.

2. Long-term sustainable impact

The promotion and growth period for the National Library of Ecuador, with all the networks it is generating, the erection of a reliable-architecture building, plus the technical diagnosis for the existing facility, is the starting point for a long-term new library culture.

It has been settled down that a Library is not a building full of books, but rather a place where people are educated and informed.

IFLA/UNESCO manifestos provided the basis for the analysis and the new vision of what a Library's full-time work is meant to be.

3. The project has allowed to understand:

That interlibrary co-operation is critical: a library should not be isolated at any moment.

That the education of a librarian requires on-going updating through refresh training, seminars, linking with successful experiences.

That libraries are knowledge repertoires in addition to their democratic nature by being linked to the civil society.

That cutting edge technology is a high-priority in the 21st century, and that an effort has to be made to keep the existing digital divide from growing deeper.

4. How to profit from the knowledge acquired

By joining the IFLA.

By exchanging interlibrary experiences.

Through information: a network is being set up.

By including the libraries in the Political Agenda of the country, seeking to achieve the required upgrading. The conviction that training means individual and collective development has been planted in each librarian. That library is a social service rather than a bureaucratic activity.

5. How will the participants take advantage of that which was learned in the activities?

This process is already in progress. The design of intercultural libraries has already been incorporating into this work. In this regard, the Ministry of Education became a strategic ally. Particularly, a reference can be made to the case of a library in Otavalo, a city formed mostly by an indigenous population, which is pioneering in this regard. Moreover, librarians have realized that a library may become a training center in citizenship: i.e., activities may include lectures, discussions on community problems, inter alia.

6. Who will benefit from the knowledge acquired by the participants?

The general society, but especially the children and the youth. Ecuador is a young country where 40% of the total population is below 15 years of age. Students in the schools and universities need to be educated as far as the library culture is concerned. According to recent data, 64% of the national population has only basic education. 28% has secondary education.

7. How many beneficiaries are expected to be reached (in figures)?

The number will increase progressively. But if the process takes momentum in the National Library System and in the creation of the National Library, the library culture will benefit at least 4 million people within the next 4 years.

8. Has any deviation from the original program been detected?

Positive deviations. No consideration was given, for example, to the fact that the creation of a genuine national library would become a priority task, especially when in Ecuador, in addition to Casa de la Cultura, which has some 70 years of leadership, the Ministry of Culture has just been created.

The small library in <<La Casa de la Juventud>>, located in the city of Otavalo, 90 kilometres from Quito, is to about become the first pilot intercultural library in Ecuador. The collaboration and the leadership offered by Dr. Elizabeth de Carvalho has been critical both in the design of this new library and in the accomplishment of the Seminar. The seminar was not an end, but rather a beginning... Works and actions will be far reaching. The Librarian in charge of Casa de la Juventud went to Sao Paulo's seminar for a training period. The new vision, creation of the National Library, will be discussed in the coming months. The starting point for this library is as follows: to record, in any format, all references to what Ecuador is all about, including the plurality; all artistic, cultural and scientific manifestations, avoiding any centralism of any kind. It is well known that the academic centralism even excludes, marginalizes.

Internet Manifesto Guidelines Workshop Quito, Ecuador February, 2008

Barbara Jones and Alejandra Martínez del Prado visited Quito, Ecuador to conduct an Internet Manifesto Guidelines Workshop. Felipe Martinez was in charge of the workshop organization. A total of 89 people including 67 women and 22 men attended the event. Participants came from all the 24 provinces of the country. The attendees included public, school and academic librarians. More detailed information on the charts below.

On Thursday, February 21, Felipe Martínez Arellano gave a brief introduction of the Internet Manifesto. On February 22, Barbara Jones and Alejandra Martínez conducted the workshop under the following schedule. A first one-hour session was dedicated to talk about the International Context of the Internet Manifesto. Barbara talked in English while Alejandra was encouraging the attendees to talk about their experiences and translating them to the English.

Session two was presented during a two hour period of time. Barbara talked about the barriers to Internet Access (psychological, social, economic, technological, cultural). Some participants gave examples of their own barriers to Internet access at their libraries.

All participants had a thirty minute break, and finally, the session three included information on How to Apply the Manifesto in a real Library. Barbara Jones presented case studies from public and academic libraries about ways to apply the Guidelines. Alejandra presented success stories of libraries using the Internet, links to examples of e-commerce, e-government, and e-learning in Latin America, as well as IFLA, FAIFE and ALA online documents on intellectual freedom. Barbara and Alejandra talked about the important role of the librarian to promote access to information on the Internet, mentioning the writing policies.

During the workshop sessions, the help from Felipe Martínez to contextualize Internet Manifesto and Guidelines to local situation and conditions was very important.

All attendees received a printed copy of the materials prepared for the three sessions by Barbara Jones and translated into Spanish by Alejandra Martínez. It is important to point out these materials were used for first time in Mexico and they will be used in other workshops that would be conducted in other Latin American countries. The Power Points presentations were also in Spanish since most of the participants did not speak English, and in this way, we could make sure everyone could follow Barbara speech.

It is important to mention that all materials used at the workshop also were sent to Mercedes Falconí Ramos, local organizer, in order to place them as links at the Seminar web page. They are also in the website that the CUIB (<http://cuib.unam.mx>) has built for all the workshops given in Latin America. These materials will be placed as well at the FAIFE web page.

In general, librarians from Ecuador were receptive to the Guidelines actively and showed great interest for the content of the workshop. They expressed interest in attending more workshops about the topic. One of the main problems at public libraries in Ecuador is the lack of infrastructure to give access to Internet. However, some libraries have done efforts to give this service. Likewise, Ecuatorian librarian have few opportunities to attend meetings where they can discuss this kind of issues, so this was a great opportunity to share with other colleagues problems they face to give services using Internet.

The workshop was presented in the frame of the Regional Seminar on IFLA/UNESCO Manifestos on Public and School Libraries and the Internet, organized by the IFLA Regional Office for Latin America, the Latin America and the Caribbean Section, Action for Development through Libraries Programme Core Activity (ALP), as well as diverse organizations from Ecuador: Ministerio de Cultura. Comisión Nacional Permanente de Conmemoraciones Cívicas; Casa de la Cultura Ecuatoriana Benjamín Carrión, Biblioteca Nacional "Eugenio Espejo", Centro Cultural Metropolitano, Red de Bibliotecas Alcaldía Metropolitana de Quito. Seminar organization was under the leadership of Mercedes Falconí.

Finally, the impression left from libraries and librarians from Ecuador was very enthusiastic, since librarians were all very kind to each other. They also looked very glad to receive information on Internet Access, and they found the Seminar and all its content very encouraging to be updated and to get some ideas on how to improve their libraries and their communities.

The action of the libraries and the libraries associations in South America for the implementation of the information society and IFLA Manifestos

IFLA- ALP and LAC Meeting Quito, 20-22 February 2008

Regional seminary for dissemination and promotion of IFLA_UNESCO Manifestos about public libraries, school libraries and Internet, about the society of information in action and the multicultural libraries.

Countries: Ecuador, Colombia, Peru, Venezuela, Brazil, México, United States, Portugal, Switzerland and Sweden.

This conference attracts more than 400 librarians coming from all the part of Ecuador and the nearby countries.

Even IFLA have no member from Ecuador, the librarians of this country have a great interest in the utilization of the IFLA manifestos to develop theirs libraries (Public library manifesto, School library manifesto, Internet manifesto and Multicultural manifesto).

The conference was well organized and gives a large place to the discussion between all the participants.

The programme was well structured.

First day:

- Manifesto for public libraries and round table about public libraries
- Multicultural libraries with the accent on the educational axis.

Second day:

- Manifesto for school libraries, round table on school libraries,
- Society of information and round table on society of information,
- Round table national reality of the libraries,
- Manifesto about Internet and round table libraries in Ecuador expectations and potentials

Third day:

- Workshop libraries and Internet
- Workshop Public libraries
- Workshop School libraries
- Conclusion and summary of the workshops

After those 3-day of hard work, the Ecuadorian librarians have taken important decisions.

If they have a good network of public libraries in Ecuador, they want to develop the school libraries that are still nonexistent in the country. The use of the IFLA UNESCO manifestos in an open conference gives more influence to the librarians in the negotiation with their authorities.

After the conference, the SINAB (Sistema Nacional de bibliotecas) look agrees to create a network of school libraries. They have a great interest for the IFLA actions in the WSIS process for implementation of the information society by the way of the libraries.

A lot of points were developed during those 3 days. The need for librarian training for school libraries and public libraries is one of the most sensible.

One of the conclusions is that role of the libraries in the society is very important for development in collaboration with the local communities.

The state must develop and create libraries to guarantee the access to information and knowledge for all. The libraries must be considered as a space of democracy, liberty, equality, multicultural and free of charge for access. The libraries help the development of the nations.

The librarians who take part at this conference urge the government to create multicultural libraries and to recognize the importance of the libraries in all the society.

This conference has a good audience in the Ecuadorian newspapers.

I was impressed by the energy and the vitality of our colleagues from this part of the world. They are very actives and they have a lot of success stories in the implementation of the information society with the libraries.

One of the most interesting experience is this one from the region of Cajamarca in Peru where is the rural population who create itself a network of libraries without help from nobody. You can read it in the new version of the IFLA Success stories database <http://www.tribalpixel.ch/ifla/> search on Peru or for direct access to the description click on this link <http://www.tribalpixel.ch/ifla/result.php?id=135>.

In conclusion of my Ecuadorian experience, I think that IFLA must better inform his members about the activities in the regional sections (why not have a plenary session at the WLIC to present globally all the regional actions of the IFLA) and develop tools to be able to enlarge is membership in the South and Central American countries.

The action of the IFLA LAC and the andina countries librarians are example for other part of the world. (Danielle Mincio, member of the IFLA GB)

NEWS OF INTEREST TO THE REGION

2008: Year of Languages

The year 2008 has been proclaimed International Year of Languages by the United Nations General Assembly. With the slogan "languages matter!", UNESCO is aiming at extensive fulfilment in its role as coordinator of activities for this Year. The conviction that language diversity is essential to the human heritage - as each and every language embodies the unique cultural wisdom of a people - is the common working ground for all those who will respond to this call for action.

Proposed areas for partnership and collaboration are multilingualism in cyberspace, radio programmes in all languages, translating projects especially from and into lesser known languages, languages and migration, safeguarding endangered languages, those being only an example of what a Year of Languages can mean for policy makers and project organizers. Quoting Mr Koïchiro Matsuura, Director General of UNESCO:

"The common goal is to ensure that the importance of linguistic diversity and multilingualism in educational, administrative and legal systems, cultural expressions and the media, cyberspace and trade, is recognized on the national, regional and international levels".

UNESCO therefore invites governments, United Nations organizations, civil society organizations, educational institutions, professional associations and all other stakeholders to increase their own activities to foster respect for, and the promotion and protection of all languages, particularly endangered languages, in all individual and collective contexts. The formal launching of the Year of Languages will be on 21 February 2008, the International Mother Language Day. Extensive information is to be found on the official UNESCO website

John Ames Humphry/OCLC/Forest Press Award Winner Announced

Barbara J. Ford is this year's recipient of the American Library Association (ALA) International Relations Committee's John Ames/Humphry/OCLC/ Forest Press Award. OCLC/Forest Press donated the cash award of $1,000, which is given to an individual for significant contribution to international librarianship.

Ford, the director of the Mortenson Center for International Library Programs and a professor at the Library of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, received this award for her librarianship efforts, extensive publications and significant contributions to the American Library Association (ALA) and International Federation of Library Associations (IFLA). Her publication record speaks for itself. She has presented and published on international aspects of librarianship and, through her editorial positions, has encouraged the dissemination of information on librarianship to a global audience.

"Barbara J. Ford is truly an outstanding and influential international librarian. She is thoroughly committed to connecting librarians around the world through her work at the Mortenson Center for International Library Programs at the University of Illinois, through her long involvement with IFLA, including serving on the governing board from 2005-2007, and through her leadership in ALA's and ACRL's (Association of College and Research Libraries) international committees and activities, including serving as ALA President from 1997-98. Ms. Ford also spent four years in the Peace Corps in Panama and Nicaragua and continually presents and publishes about her international activities", said Robin L. Kear, Chair of the IRC- John Ames Humphry/OCLC/Forest Press Award Committee.

Ms. Ford will be recognized during the International Relations Round Table Chair's Program on Monday, June 30, at the ALA Annual Conference in Anaheim, Calif.

World Digital Library

On October 17, 2007, UNESCO launched the prototype of the World Digital Library project, which is intended to be the biggest digital collection in the world, including cultural and scientific production from several countries. The launching took place during the 37th General Meeting of the organization, in Paris.

The World Digital Library is an initiative of the US Library of Congress and will receive support from the National Library of Brazil (BN), the only library in Latin America invited to participate in the development of the portal that will make a significant store of wisdom from several peoples and cultures available in several languages,

IFLA and UNESCO encourage local and national governments, intergovernmental organizations and sponsors to recognize the strategic relevance of digital libraries. They incentive large-scale digitization programs aiming to make scientific and cultural information more readily available for the information society

Specific legislation and financial support from both national and local governments are critical to reduce the digital divide and to guarantee that future generations will have access. Any strategy has as an objective to boost the development of education, literacy, culture and, above all, to ensure access to information. Interoperability and sustainability are key elements in the exchange of data between digital libraries; therefore, they must be in compliance with standards and protocols at a world level.

The project comprises two phases: in the first stage users will have free access to documents like digitize maps, photographs and manuscripts; in the second stage they will have access to books, musical scores, recorded sound, and videos. Explanatory texts in Portuguese, Arabic, English, Spanish, French, Chinese, and Russian will accompany all material available for viewing.

According to the Director of the US Library of Congress, James Billington, the project is expected to include documents from China, India and the Islamic world. We are targeting to recreate the memory of much older cultures than ours," he said.

Google and Microsoft are key partners in this project
