Anonymous classics

a list of uniform titles for Chinese works

2011

INTRODUCTION

As a reply to the International Conference on Cataloguing Principles, held at UNESCO, Paris, 1961, a first list of uniform titles for Anonymous classics was published by IFLA in 1964<sup>1</sup> with the assistance of UNESCO. This list, which represented a first attempt at the standardization of headings for titles at an international level, was regarded as temporary by its compiler Roger Pierrot. The project was to draw a list of the works from countries which had attended the International Conference: on the basis of the answers provided by 15 European and Asian countries, works of literature in 34 languages were listed in this publication.

No later edition was issued for this working tool. In 1978, it was partly replaced by an edition limited to European literatures, revised and augmented by the addition of 8 literatures missing in the 1964 edition. It was planned by the International Office for UBC and coordinated by Rosemary C. Hewett<sup>2</sup>.

In the early 90s, these two documents were out of print and a mere reprint was not conceivable because of their incompleteness. During the 60th IFLA Conference in Havana in 1994, the Section on Cataloguing included in its action plan a new edition of Anonymous Classics, divided in several phases. The first phase was a revision of existing lists of European literatures, complemented by the addition of literatures missing in the 1978 edition. Published on the IFLA website in 2004, the new edition of Anonymous classics : a list of uniform headings for European literatures includes literatures in 28 languages of the European continent and is completed by definitions of the works and a bibliography for each literature.

The next step was to draw up a list of African oral epics. It was published, as a draft, on the IFLA website in 2005.

With the present list of Chinese anonymous classics the Asian part of the project begins. For Asian literatures, the lists will be published separately and successively. In the long term the aim is to bring together these lists in order to create links between the versions or adaptations of the same work in different languages.

Anonymous classics: a list of uniform headings for Chinese works began to be compiled in early 2006 by Ben Gu, National Library of China. Most titles originate from Zhong guo da shu dian (中国大书典) or Great Encyclopedia of Chinese Books. According to experts from the National Library of China, most anonymous classics are dated before the Qing dynasty (1616-1912). Therefore, this list includes very few titles after the beginning of the Qing dynasty. Titles in other languages are mainly selected from the online catalogues of national libraries.

Nadine Boddaert reviewed the draft, and made some comments and suggestions. After Ben Gu and Nadine Boddaert met in Paris in April 2008, the draft was finalized and made ready for review by the IFLA Cataloguing Section.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Alphabetical order

The list of anonymous classics is arranged in alphabetical order according to Latin script.

Criteria for the selection of the works

The “anonymous classics” listed are:

- works until the early 17th century
- classic works and very few works of folk literature (these will be added in a future edition)
- texts of unknown, legendary or dubious authorship

Form of the uniform heading

The uniform heading is given in a modern form in Chinese characters. It is followed by the transliterated form according to the Pinyin system adopted as the standard for the romanization of Chinese by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO 7098:1992).

Options for Romanization

Pinyin, ISO standard 7098, is the Romanization system used in this document to transcribe Chinese preferred forms.

However in libraries across the world – both in Asia and elsewhere – practices today regarding the aggregation of Romanized sinograms tend to vary : either the syllables are partitioned according to the Chinese script, or individual characters are semantically aggregated into lexical units (with important variations in the aggregation practices), or a hybrid method is used. Expert librarians are well aware of the advantages and drawbacks of each of option - which need not be outlined in detail here. Due to a lack of international consensus, the compiler of Chinese Anonymous classics has opted for the method followed by the Library of Congress:

the Romanized forms of proper names (names of individuals and geographic names) are aggregated while the Romanized forms of common nouns are not.

Symbols used

The symbols used are those recommended by the Guidelines for authority records and references<sup>3</sup>:

< variant title

>><< version of the work in another language (equals sign “=” in the 1964 and 1968 editions of Anonymous classics)

---

<sup>3</sup> Guidelines for authority records and references / IFLA, 2nd ed., 2001

Variant titles of a work

The following are listed as variant forms of the title of a work:

- variant titles in Chinese
- non ISO-compliant romanized forms of Chinese titles (not followed by any ISO language code)
- titles of published translations of the work into other languages
- titles commonly used in reference sources.

Versions in other literatures

Equivalent uniform headings for the versions of a work in another literature are provided only when the work corresponds to criteria to be included in the future list of “anonymous classics” of this literature.

It is preceded by the sign >> << (Cf. supra).

e.g.:

百战奇法

>> << 백전기 법 [kor]

For the equivalent version in Korean, the Korean characters are followed by the transliterated form according to the ALA-LC romanization tables, because the experimental ISO standard ISO/TR 11941:1996 is not completely satisfactory and still remains provisional.

e.g.:

百战奇法 = Bai zhan qi fa

>> << 백전 기법 = Paekchön kipǒp [kor]

Language codes

The languages are indicated by the three-letter ISO 639-2b codes.
<<http://www.loc.gov/standards/iso639-2/>>

Supposed author

When a work is attributed to an author – even if incorrectly – an indication of the author’s name is given, in Chinese characters, followed by the transliterated form and, in case of Kongzi, also by the most common designation in many countries.

e.g.:

Supposed compiler: 孔子 = Kongzi = Confucius

For the structure of headings of personal names, each user will refer to national standards and authority files.

Index

An index of titles and supposed authors has been provided at the end of the publication. It includes all titles (in bold characters) and variants. It is arranged in alphabetic order according to Latin script. More explanations are given at the beginning of the index.

INDEX OF TITLES AND SUPPOSED AUTHORS

This index lists all titles cited in the document, including variants, translations, etc. and supposed authors.

Each entry is given in Latin script. ISO romanized forms are immediately followed by the form in the original script. Some Korean forms are also followed by the form in the Chinese classical script, according to the Korean usage.

The filing arrangements, which have been chosen in order to achieve consistency in a multi-language context, are as follows:

- a) entries are filed word by word for forms in Latin script;
- b) modifications to letters, accents, diacritical marks, etc. are ignored;
- c) initial articles are provided after the title and enclosed in parentheses .
