• IFLA PRE-CONFERENCE SEMINAR Mobile Libraries Serving Multicultural Popu-
There are three full-time staff members with the IFLA Directory. What is not clear from those brief details is the range of nationalities, languages and professional background, and the responsibilities of various staff members. Therefore it is hoped that this short article will lift the veil on some of the "mysteries". There are three full-time staff members with professional library training and experience: they are the Secretary General, Leo Voogt, the Professional Coordinator, Winston Roberts, and the Executive Officer, Carol Henry.

- Leo is Dutch, a librarian and historian by training (and also by inclination). His second language is French (he lived in France for some years). Right now he is learning Dutch. He is from New Zealand, though his professional library career was in the United Kingdom. He did his library studies at the University of Sheffield (UK) and worked for several years at the British Library. He was the Programme Officer of the UBCIM Programme in London from 1987-1999. He was appointed in 1999 as Coordinator of Professional Activities at IFLA HQ. He advises IFLA officers on the administration of their Sections, the management of projects, the planning of meetings, and coordination among the various Sections, Round Tables, and Core Programmes. He acts as the secretary to the Professional Board of IFLA, and also represents IFLA at professional meetings with other organisations.

-Carol is from the USA, and has lived in the Netherlands for many years. She graduated from the State University of New York (Binghamton) and did her library studies at Syracuse. During her 15 years at IFLA HQ, she has become known to IFLA members and librarians around the world as the editor of the IFLA Journal and the IFLA Annual. She has the task of compiling the annual conference programme. She advises the national organising committee each year on the general organisation of the conference - and she remembers everything about all our past conferences...! (She manages to remain very modest about herself, but is very proud of her grandchildren).

-Jos de Block is the secretary of the Professional Coordinator, and also helps the professional staff. She is the HQ expert in making arrangements for meeting accommodation and for welcoming IFLA members and other visitors on holiday in Austria (of course she cannot do that in the Netherlands...)

-Dini Verschoor, Financial Assistant, deals with banking transactions and keeps the books in order. (Right now, she is enjoying learning how to do electronic banking!). Her hobby is fishing: the

The 13 pages document is available at the Office for those interested in this new instrument to achieve the improvement of LIS in the three IFLA regional areas.

• IFLA CONFERENCES

1995: 20-26 August, Istanbul, Turkey. Theme: Libraries of the future. Sub-themes: Information technology and the restructuring of libraries; Cooperative national and international information networks, The future of library materials, Libraries and public education, Professional communication. December 1, 1994 is the deadline for receipt of the draft text and the application form at IFLA Headquarters for the presentation of papers that must focus on one of the sub-themes. Applicants should note that papers focusing exclusively on a local/national system or situation are less likely to be accepted.

1997: Amsterdam, Netherlands

• IFLA HEADQUARTERS AND THE STAFF

Some members of IFLA may not be completely familiar with the operation of the secretariat (headquarters) of IFLA, known as IFLA HQ. Members will see the names, job titles and photographs of the staff of IFLA HQ in the new 1994-95 edition of the IFLA Directory. What is not clear from those brief details is the range of nationalities, languages and professional background, and the responsibilities of various staff members. Therefore it is hoped that this short article will lift the veil on some of the "mysteries".
staff has not decided if this is relevant to her IFLA work or not.
Jos and Dini are Dutch, and have worked at IFLA HQ for many years and are familiar to IFLA members.
Hanny Duivestijn, who is also Dutch, started working as Administrative Assistant at IFLA HQ in 1994. She is rapidly and enthusiastically learning all about the complexities of a world-wide organisation.
-Sophie Felfldi, who was born in Hungary, is the Personal Assistant to the Secretary General. She was originally trained in classical music, but has developed expertise in computer applications, particularly the use of the Internet. (In fact, sometimes the staff thinks she talks to the computers and they talk back to her! Her favourite animal is the IFLA ‘gopher’.
-Theresa Stanton is the Publications Assistant. She has lived in the Netherlands since 1983, after graduating from the University of London (UK) with a degree in Oriental Studies. She joined the IFLA HQ staff in 1991. She is responsible for the in-house production of IFLA’s publicity materials and professional reports. (In fact, Theresa shares her time between IFLA and FID: she is also Head Publications at FID and editor of the FID News Bulletin.)
As can be imagined, daily work at IFLA HQ is a complex mixture of policy discussions, detailed planning of activities, discussions with Section officers and other colleagues (by phone, fax and - increasingly - electronic mail), drafting reports, mailing out publications, compiling conference papers, writing minutes, and answering mountains of correspondence from all around the world from members and non-members. The staff is also frequently in contact with other national and international organisations. The main working language of HQ is English, but the staff also works in French and Dutch, and occasionally German and Hungarian. They can read Spanish (though they cannot write it - at least, not yet). Life at HQ is frequently a babel of languages and accents, but everyone understands each other!
In such a small secretariat, many tasks have to be done in common, and the staff is flexible. IFLA members should not be surprised if they write to one staff member and get the answer back from another: the expertise and experience of the staff is wide. The answer may not come back instantly, particularly in the busiest period of the year - in some cases HQ staff will need to consult widely, and in other cases they will call on senior members of IFLA for advice, but the staff will always do their best to solve problems and advise members as quickly as possible, in the best IFLA tradition.

- IFLA ALP Brainstorming Meeting of ALP Advisory Committee and the Coordinating Board of Division VIII.

Uppsala, Sweden, April 1994

According to a Report by Ivone Talamo, SC/IFLA/LAC Member who sent a briefing of the main subjects treated.

Promotion: The meeting was promoted by ALP with the support of Swedish Institutes

Local: “Carolina Rediviva Library”, University of Uppsala, Sweden

Participants: Members of the ALP Advisory Committee from IFLA Regional Division

Objective: Discuss the ALP Program, its results, projects, future activities and the role of the Regional Division.

Main subjects treated in the Meeting:

1. ALP

It was discussed the transference of the focal point to one of the three regions after 1997. There is a possibility of the Nordic countries continue to support the programs until 2000 even if the focal point is moved from Uppsala. It has been discussed the necessity of the Regional Offices to strengthen their role in the regions to support ALP.

1.1 Projects

After all projects were analyzed the results are as follows:

- They should aim at the necessities of the region and they should have strong support from an institution for their continuity;
- Projects aimed at the general public should be stimulated;
- Latin America and the Caribbean should define its priority before developing its projects. It was mentioned an Asia project to identify the region necessities which can be used as a model. Of the LAC Region selected projects 11 aimed at human resources (7 of them were seminars) and two aimed the general public;
- The relationship of IFLA/LAC with other IFLA programmes should be improved;
- Projects concerning events should be criteriously analyzed specially on their objectives, continuity and results.

2. Financial Resources

Aiming at the increase of financial support to the development of regional activities it was suggested some forms to obtain additional financial resources, such as:

- The selling of advertisements in the Newsletters;
- The development of joint projects with other organizations;
- The relationship with cultural projects financial agencies;
- The development of joint projects with other IFLA programmes;
- Holding meetings of the SC together with events in the Region.
A working group composed by the presidents of the three regional sections is going to analyze the participation of the third world in IFLA and present the results at the General Conference in Cuba. The report draft by this group will be sent to the regional managers for their comments. The deadline is July 15th 1994 and its version will be in English and French.

3. Division of Regional Activities.
The following subjects have been treated:
- strengthening of the internal organization of the sections with well defined personal responsibilities and of the relations with other IFLA divisions;
- improve the programmes of action in the region and motivate SC members giving them specific tasks to develop;
- identify priorities concerning projects, specify objectives and products;
- ALP will finance every three years the CB meeting;
- reorganize the structure of the section in order to know what to do and how to do it;
- become self sufficient and independent;

4. Events
Joint activities of the three regional sections:
4.1 General Conference in Habana/Cuba, 1994
- open forum with speakers of the regions; funding have been applied for;
4.2 Istanbul, Turkey, 1995
- OPEN FORUM: should have speakers of the three regions and the theme is “Enhancement of the Library Profession”;
- Workshop: the theme will be “Network and Virtual Libraries”;
- Contributed paper competition: suggested theme “Virtual library: Reality, Possibility or Pie in the Sky”.
- Pre-Seminar: suggested theme “Influence of Decision Makers in Library Planning”
4.3 Beijing, China, 1996
- Open forum: it will be organized and coordinated by the Asia & Oceania Regional Section;
- Workshop: theme “Literacy and library in China”;
- Pre-Seminar: it has been suggested the theme “Library and South-South Cooperation”.
4.4 Pre-Seminars
It will be analysed the results of the pre seminars, the time and costs involving their organization. It has been suggested to make a study and to develop a methodology on them. It has been decided:
- that the Office Regional Managers will prepare a historical compiling of these pre seminars in their regions and that the presidents of the regional sections will prepare a survey with the objective of verifying results, multiplication effect, work developed by participants etc. Stela Morales, secretary of the LAC Section will collaborate with a data base project;
- UNESCO will stop funding the pre seminars.

5. Data base of financial agencies
The three regional sections should develop a project to identify in each country funding agencies, giving their name, address, kind of sponsorship etc. It is a task to be developed by the SC members.

6. Specialists data base
A common project for the three geographical areas in connection with library associations and in coordination with UNESCO.

7. Seminar on Librarianship in the Third World, Stockholm, April 11, 1994
After the ALP Meeting, the Swedish Library Association promoted in the office of SIDA a Seminar on Librarianship in the Third World. The meeting had participants from 40 institutions. The papers have been presented by representatives of the three regions and by the IFLA/ALP representative.

- 2nd Latin American, 17th Brazilian Congress of Library Science and Documentation. Birgitta Bergdahl was present and introduced the ALP Programme to participants.
- 2nd Meeting of Portuguese Language Librarians. ALP cosponsored the event.

Projects
The following projects were considered the best: The creation of an association of library schools for the South Cone countries (Argentina, Chile, Paraguay and Uruguay) which led to a very good cooperation among these countries, aimed at harmonizing library education and achieving a division of labour between the countries. One of the products is a database, maintained at the School of Library Science and Documentation at the University of Buenos Aires, Argentina. The project was highly praised at the Unesco workshop and the database was proposed to become the nucleus of a database, covering all Latin America and run by the school in Buenos Aires. The ALP pre-study which has led to a reconstruction of the Latin-American database INFOBILA (run by UNAM in Mexico) in cooperation with several countries was regarded very highly in Uppsala and at the two events in Belo Horizonte. The IFLA-support and advice now has strong institutional linkages in the region after the meeting with took place as a part of the pre-study. The information can be exchanged with institutions in Brazil, Costa Rica and Cuba, where copies of the data-base exist. The database is also much better promoted in the region and is widely accessible.

The project to serve indigenous communities in Amazonas, Venezuela with public library services is not completed but was praised because of its service character and its ambitions to reach new readers with reading material and information in their own languages. It has also successfully linked up ties with other actors, such as an NGO.
Handicapped is a good example of an important conference, the result of which is not only an exchange of knowledge and information and proceedings, which are now being published, but also a long term commitment from ALP and the Regional Section. The resolutions from the Seminar will be followed up, starting with the workshop in Havana. The work engages ALP, the RSC LAC, the Section of Libraries for the Blind, the Latin American Blind Union and national institutions and associations in the region.

Priorities

The following priorities for the future were decided in Belo Horizonte:

1. To prioritize the two Caribbean projects “Survey of national information resources and services in the member states of the OECS and review plans for development” and the Advanced Course Library Personnel Aruba and the Netherlands Antilles”. To give continued support to INFOBILA. To finish the South Cone cooperation project by supporting the last phase.

2. To create an attachment programme in the region.

3. To adapt the model workshop from Asia and Oceania on the assessment of needs and how to write project applications and apply it either in Central America or in Chile in connection with the next RSC meeting and UNESCO Seminar.

4. To continue work on INFOSIL. To assist the Puerto Rico Library Cooperative in its efforts to develop services to the public.

5. To support cooperation between Brazil and the Portuguese speaking countries in Africa. This will be a follow-up to the “Second Meeting of Portuguese language librarians”, in Brazil, April 1994.

It is hoped that UNESCO will support the development of the database of library schools in Latin America and the Caribbean.

To cooperate with the ALP International Focal Point in the development of the database of donors within the library field.

General recommendations for the future

The regional goals need to be defined more clearly so that the individual projects are placed in a context. All projects should have strong institutional linkages. Projects which aim at developing services to the public should be encouraged more. To this end one should establish cooperation with researches and with NGOs and other actors. Cooperation with other IFLA Core Programmes and Sections; and with other organizations and institutions should be promoted. Also in Latin America the programme is hampered by limited human resources and poor representation of one sub-region, Central America. The capacity must be reinforced.

Part of a report to be presented by Birgitta Bergdahl in Cuba.

• ACURIL

ACURIL is the acronym for Association for Caribbean, Research and Institutional Libraries, and was founded in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The Association of Caribbean Universities (UNICA), organized in 1967, to promote Caribbean Universities inter-cooperation, recognized the need of library cooperation in the region. In the 1968 annual meeting of UNICA, papers were presented on the theme of library cooperation. This Association sponsored the first Caribbean conference on university and research institutes library cooperation, hosted by the University of Puerto Rico in June 1969, in San Juan. Forty delegates from the Caribbean region and observers from other areas attended the meeting. At this conference the Association of Caribbean Universities and Research Institute Libraries (ACURIL) was born to meet the need for a joint approach to cooperative acquisition, cooperative bibliographic indexing and microfilming, and four working committees were set up for these areas.

Resolutions were adopted stressing the control of government publications in the Caribbean. The Constitution outlined the association’s aims as follows:

- to facilitate the development and use of libraries and the identification of library collections in support of the whole range of intellectual endeavors throughout the Caribbean area.
- to strengthen the profession of librarianship in the region.
- to promote cooperative library activities in pursuit of these objectives.

Membership was opened to “University and research libraries situated within the Caribbean archipelago and the mainland countries or the states of the United States which border the Caribbean Sea or the Gulf of Mexico, including the Guianas'. Libraries located outside the region with collections pertinent to the Caribbean were admitted as associate members.

Later, in response to the need of development of the association - some changes have taken place in the organization. In 1976, the association opened its doors to other kinds of libraries, and the word institutes was changed to institutional, thus becoming the Association of Caribbean University, Research and Institutional Libraries.

In 1986 ACURIL widened its scope again by opening up to library associations, libraries, archives and information centres and its personnel. By keeping pace with the demands of its membership, ACURIL has grown over the years. From 25 to 100 institutional members has been paralleled by the attendance of annual conferences rising from around 50 at first to 250 at present.

Moreover, all the four official language groups of the area - Dutch, English, French and Spanish - are now fully represented in ACURIL’s membership which spans 31 countries and islands. To many Caribbean librarians ACURIL is synonymous to people. So strong have been the personal bonds forged over the years that not a conference passes without gifts being exchanged between the regular attendees. Equally, to many ACURIL is the professional stimulation derived from the annual conferences and all that takes place in both formal and informal discussion. To all, ACURIL is the Caribbean library cooperation, continuing education and camaraderie par excellence.

By fostering unity among library, information and archives personnel, by developing a scholarly approach to the profession and by generating a new sense of self-esteem and confidence among its members, ACURIL has effectively set its seal on inter-library-relations throughout the region and beyond.

ACURIL is the mechanism through which the professionals in the Caribbean are exposed to new developments in the Library and Information Sector. It is the mechanism that brings together all these librarians from different backgrounds, different types of libraries and different language groups to find out if and where there is common ground to work upon.

On an annual basis conferences are mounted, the themes of which, are chosen by the president. This theme is dealt with in a variety of ways, by a variety of people, and from a variety of viewpoints. It is done in such a way that all professionals will find something of interest in the presentations.

The ACURIL official languages are English, French and Spanish, and there is simultaneous interpretation during all plenary sessions.

All plenary sessions are followed by discussions, ensuring a two-way communication, and much of the discussion continues during coffee-breaks, lunch breaks and continues into the social gatherings of the evening.

Some of the topics:
1969: Library cooperation and information.
1984: Automation and information in the Caribbean.
1986: Continuing education of librarians in the Caribbean.
1992: Management of resources in Caribbean libraries and information centres.
1994: Diversity and integration in the Caribbean.

The committees and special interest groups meet twice or three times during the week, and work on joint projects that are carried out throughout the year.

The membership of ACURIL consists of various categories:
(a) Institutional members:
Libraries, archives and schools conducting programmes of library or archival education.
(b) Library related non-profit organizations of two classes:
(1) National library associations; and
(2) Regional and other special organizations and associations.
(c) Personal members:
(1) Regular members - librarians and archivists, other employees of libraries or archives, and others interested in library, archival, or related services and activities, with certain exceptions.
(2) Student members - members who are enrolled at least half time in a programme of library, archival or information science.
(3) Non-salaried librarians. (4) Honorary members.

During the recently concluded annual meeting - which marked twenty-five years of ACURIL - the following board was elected:
Ms Shirley Yearwood (President)
Prof. Arturo Fernandez Ortiz (Immediate past president)
Ms Willamae Johnson (Vice-president)
Mrs Oneida Ortiz (Secretary)

SINT MAARTEN/ ST MARTIN
Sint Martin (St. Maarten, St. Martin) is an island of 86 square kilometers (37 square miles). It is situated in the Caribbean sea (63 degrees West and 18 degrees North) and has an average temperature of 27 degrees Celsius. The island is divided in a French (North = St Martin) and Dutch (South = St Maarten) side. The French side is considered a part of Guadeloupe - a French Department and the Dutch side forms together with four other islands (Bonaire, Curacao, Saba and St.Eustatius) the Netherlands Antilles, an “autonomous” partner in the Kingdom of the Netherlands. There are no real boundaries between the two sides, but each side has its own government, schools and library.

There are three official languages on Sint Martin: Dutch, French and English. On the Dutch side: Dutch and English and on the French side: French. Due to a large influx of foreign workers - in pursuit of a more prosperous future - Spanish and Haitian Creole are widely spoken as well. The small island - with a population of approx. 80,000 - is inhabited by people of all the Caribbean islands and countries, as well as people, originating from India (mostly merchants), China (grocers and owners of laundries), American business venturers and retirees and South African yachtsmen. The European Dutch and especially French are very much present in all sorts of positions and occupations.

The French side has a fully air-conditioned library with a stock of 35,000 documents, and a staff of fifteen. There is one fully qualified librarian. The annual circulation in 1993 was over 107,000. The library has collections in the schools (23,500) and small collections in the hospital and the senior citizens home.

The Dutch side has an open air, fully automated library with a stock of 50,000, a staff of twelve, of which five fully qualified librarians. The annual circulation in 1993 was over 95,000. The collection is fully bilingual (Dutch and English) with small collections in French, Spanish and German. The Dutch side has a bookmobile that visits all primary schools that are not in the direct vicinity of the library on a once-every-two-weeks basis, and intends to open its first branch library (the old bookmobile) in August upcoming.

News sent by Blanca Hodge, IFLA/LAC/SC member, Woman of the Year, Sint Martin “From the day she took charge of the Philipsburg Jubilee Library in 1968 she worked tirelessly to create an institution which should provide any individual, young or old, educated or hungry for knowledge, legally residing on the island or not, with a maximum opportunity to learn and progress... Worldwide she is highly regarded not just for her organizational talents, her know-how, but first and foremost for her vision. A vision that any library on the local level is a most powerful tool for the development of people.”...The Caribbean Herald, 3 (33), Jan.1994.
