Libraries and Community Homelessness

People who are experiencing homelessness are forced to live their private lives in public. Libraries can provide a safe, welcoming space of relative privacy.
The human rights that libraries are particularly responsible for upholding are the right to information, education and cultural participation.

The Vancouver Public Library, Carnegie Branch, in Canada is open 365 days a year, from 10 am – 10 pm, and receives city funding to serve people experiencing homelessness.

The Columbus Metropolitan Library's Ready to Read Corps in Ohio, USA regularly visits family shelters with their Bookmobile and provides programming and resources.

The BNICE organization in Buwenda, Uganda has developed libraries and programs at local schools to help youth develop job skills and avoid homelessness.

The library at the University of Salzburg, Austria participates in More4Refugees to provide access to academic education for asylum seekers and recipients.

The Public Library Pablo Neruda in Santiago, Chile offers Spanish classes and French language materials at the library for Haitian immigrants.

There are no fines or fees in Chiyoda City's Hibiya Library and Museum in Tokyo, Japan.

The Romain Rolland Mobile Library in Pondicherry, India has provided recreational activities and informal education to street, working, and at-risk children.

The State Library of Queensland in South Brisbane, Australia provides a cloakroom as a safe place to store belongings.
