5h. IFLA Congress Durban 2007. There was a discussion regarding the content and format of the planned Newspapers Open Session. The theme would be African Newspapers: Access and Technology. A call for papers would be circulated after the Seoul IFLA Congress. The aim is to have speakers from Africa; to explore how technology can be used to widen access via online means in future to both modern and older newspapers published in Africa; to seek a speaker from a Newspaper Publisher in Africa. The idea of panel discussion was endorsed by the meeting. Speakers would be invited to write their papers in full, which would be published on IFLANET in the usual way. At the Open Session, the presentation would be no more than 10 minutes per speaker, with good time (up to 90 minutes) for discussion. Action: Ed King

The meeting explored the relative decline in the availability of microfilm readers for use with microfilm. Concerns were expressed that costs of these will rise, as markets shrink, with a possible adverse effect upon the availability of many kinds of texts contained on film, including newspapers. It was agreed to draw the attention of IFLA HQ to this matter, as it is a potentially wider issue for libraries in many countries. Action: Ed King

6. Projects.

7a. International coalition on newspapers (NS2006/3)

The ICON report was tabled and a summary of the position of ICON presented by Linda Rohan. [another copy is attached with these minutes.] Melissa Trevvett said:

- The ICON database has been online since 2002. The database has seen improvements, with the editing of records by partner institutions
- 14 countries' newspapers are being microfilmed
- CRL is encouraging new members to join
- Co-operative cataloguing effort is taking place, for example with Urbana and Connecticut collating records and sending notifications of surrogates to CRL.
- Plans were in hand to propose a fourth project for funding to continue with the programme of microfilming foreign newspapers.
- CRL wish to engage with other countries to have them supply their records to be uploaded into ICON.

With regard to the Request for Information (RFI), CRL is still in the process of identifying partners to digitise portions of its newspaper collections, particularly those of Latin American countries.

Hartmut Walravens enquired whether CRL may be interested in paying for the translation of papers (Spanish-English; English-Spanish) for the forthcoming conference in Santiago. Melissa Trevvett agreed to put the matter to colleagues in CRL. Action: Melissa Trevvett
