The Social Science Libraries Section is moving to full use of Social Media.

“With the design and implementation of its new website in 2009, IFLA follows modern communication trends and wants to stimulate new forms of news dissemination. Therefore the main professional communication channel for the Sections needs to shift from the traditional newsletters in print and PDF to the active use and maintenance of the Sections’ web pages under the IFLA domain and the use of social media, such as blogging, Twitter, Facebook, LinkedIn and other relevant platforms by the Sections…” The Social Science Libraries Community includes the following sites:

IFLA Social Science Libraries Blog
IFLA Social Science Libraries Photographs
IFLA Social Science Libraries Global Forum
IFLA Social Science Libraries “Connections”

BLOG - if you haven’t already checked out the Blog, please do so. This will become the primary way for the Social Science Libraries Section to interact with our Standing Committee and our Section on topics of interest.

And, for Photographs there is a Flickr site for capturing our activities.

Our Global Forum is on Facebook and waiting for you to join in and become a part of this family of colleagues.

Additionally, the network to serve us in our professional connections is our LinkedIn site.

The disciplines of the social sciences have made fundamental contributions to the understanding of the economic, political and social life of nations in the past century. Social sciences now have an important role to play in the context of the information society as significant sources of academic and social knowledge, and more importantly, for their contribution in defining and guiding strategies for change in public policy and in citizen participation. The proliferation of digital information supports and strengthens economic, social, and political development providing the tools needed by citizens and policymakers to understand the problems they must address and the possible solutions to those problems.

- PRELIMINARY PROGRAM
- REGISTRATION INFORMATION FOR NON-U.S. CITIZENS
- REGISTRATION INFORMATION FOR U.S. CITIZENS

Helsinki – a city connecting east and west

Helsinki is the capital of Finland and home to half a million people – a city between west and east.

The Helsinki metropolitan area is very much the information-technology centre of Finland. Finns pioneered cell phone technology and the government was the first in the world to declare broadband internet access a human right. Of course libraries have been at the forefront of such changes, with free internet access for many years now. Over 60 percent of Finns have a post-comprehensive school qualification, and one in three has a university degree.

Helsinki has a well founded reputation for design and innovation and it has been nominated World Design Capital for 2012 – the same year as the 200th anniversary of Helsinki as the capital of Finland. Come and celebrate with us!

The IFLA conference venue is the Helsinki Exhibition and Convention Centre. The venue is centrally located and thanks to the effective public transport system, is easily reached from the city centre.

Finland
Independent republic since 1917, member of the European Union
Population: 5.4 million
Size: 338,000 sq km, 7th largest country in Europe
Official languages: Finnish and Swedish
Temperature in August: max. +24, min. +9, mean +16 degrees Celsius

Contemporary libraries have to fulfill many Roles. They must meet the increasingly diverse needs of users, while remaining repositories of knowledge and culture. Because of their rich and varied content, libraries have always had great potential to inspire and surprise. They are a gateway to wisdom found on the shelves, accessed through the net, or via the media. But today’s information age challenges libraries to create new content and to interact in new ways with users.

Libraries are symbols of human progress and continue to empower individuals and communities by offering access to information, knowledge and education. They remain relevant by helping people of all ages and occupations make sense of the world around them and promote social and political participation. Libraries across the globe are a vital structural part of life-long learning, and continue to be central in overcoming information barriers.

As the pace of life quickens, libraries are competing for a shrinking slice of people’s time and attention. The internet has replaced much of the work traditionally undertaken by libraries. The way we seek out information has also changed; now we Google; we consult friends and colleagues through social media; and move from group to group freely and voluntarily. To survive successfully in this new challenging era, libraries need to embrace the future, and to inspire, surprise, and empower!

This year and beyond …
We have an exciting year as we prepare for the IFLA Social Science Libraries Satellite Conference in Havana, Cuba, 8 – 10 August 2011 on Social Science Libraries: A Bridge to Knowledge for Sustainable Development. And, as we continue on to San Juan, Puerto Rico and the 77th IFLA World Library and Information Congress: General Conference and Assembly, 13 – 18 August 2011, our main program on Tuesday 16 August, in keeping with this year’s theme, is “Libraries beyond libraries; integration, innovation and information for all.”

Our Standing Committee has had a busy year, not just with conference planning, as noted, but also the IFLA elections. This year we welcome 10 new members to the committee. Congratulations to all of them, as well as the committee members that have been working hard to increase our visibility and numbers and the country diversity in our group.

We have also embarked on moving forward in Social Media forums, as is addressed elsewhere in this newsletter. Besides our Newsletter and Blog, set up some months ago, we have a Flickr account, Facebook page, and a LinkedIn Group. Let’s make this work and work well as we continue to make our presence known and move forward with the IFLA Headquarters Office in developing IFLA in Social Media. (page1)

Don’t forget to bring a copy of this issue with you to our Standing Committee Meetings scheduled for Saturday and Thursday. (page1)

Wilda Newman
